THE YEAR IN RETROSPECT

THIS is the end, it is true, but yet it is but the beginning. Once more the scholastic year has come to a close. Oddly enough in the year of our Lord 1943 we have exactly 43 seniors. They have now just completed the first chapter in the history of their lives and are standing at the threshold of the second. They have worked hard and mightily during the past year and the grasp of the diploma is the key to the second chapter. It means more to them than can be stated in mere words.

This year has been one in direct contrast to the many preceding it. The natural gaiety and lightheartedness, the general happy-go-lucky feeling that the end has been reached and tomorrow will witness us free and independent has been changed. Although the class has had its measure of fun, it has been tempered by the realization of the duties which lay before them and which will have to be fulfilled.

With the passing of the eighteen year draft measure last fall came the absolute certainty that most of the seniors would be in the country's armed forces by mid-summer. By now they have been registered, classified, blood tests taken, etc., and stand waiting for the call. Most of them will be inducted immediately after graduation. Several seniors have taken the Army and Navy tests which they passed and have already been appointed as cadets or apprentice seamen. The seniors though are not the only ones who have felt the pinch of Uncle Sam because several members of the Junior Class were lost to the service. It is feared that many more from that division will be called during the summer months. However, all of these young men are true loyal sons and gladly offer their services to our beloved country to which they are indebted for so much.

Our spiritual needs should not be left by the wayside during the stress of wartime living with its rush to train and build the body to its highest point of efficiency. The rushing about makes it only too easy to let slip our cloak of innocence and exchange it for that of the Pharisee. We have this year received strong bulwarks to the foundation of our faith in the lectures of Brother Peter and the grace of the Retreat at Manresa. We should now pray for the grace to keep to the straight and narrow path and the special grace to rise again if by misfortune we should fall.

In the services our education will not come to an abrupt halt but will continue as it has here at St. Stanislaus and it will not be "Education for Death," but rather "Education for Life." The military training we will receive will help us to strike down our less noble characteristics and enliven our more noble ones. It will fit us for the tasks to come. To many of us it may become our life's work, but to all of us it should be a great help in training ourselves for the world to come after the war when it will devolve on us the responsibility of restoring the world to peace, a real and lasting peace and not just an armistice.

Whatever we embark on in the future—army, navy, marines or war work—we are going to miss the noisy but yet quiet air of St. Stanislaus which we know so well. No more the carefree days of boyhood but now the responsibilities of manhood are our lot.

Remembering all this as we send our last issue of the Rock-A-Chaw to the press, we take this opportunity to bid a farewell to the members of the Senior Class hoping and praying that their future lives will be successful and that God will bless them all.—Jerome Fortenberry, St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaw, May 28, 1943.

FARMERS FED UP

MANY large dairies have gone out of business. More and more is the nation having to rely for its food on the family farm where the members get up in the early hours, milk the cows, tend to the farming during the day, milk the cows at night, and at a late hour call it a day, go to bed, and get up to do the job all over again, seven days a week.

If the farmer worked the short hours and received the high pay of workers in war industries who are constantly striking for even higher wages, those workers would probably be paying a dollar a quart for milk.

Nature's requirements on the farm recognize no artificial production limitations and slow-down sabotage.

There are two good places to put strikers today—in the Army and on the farms. They would then get an idea of what real work is.

PATRIOTISM TO WHOM?

THIS country has just witnessed the humiliation of our government by American coal miners and their leaders, in war time.

There is no use trying to overlook the facts—the men walked off the job in defiance of requests of the President of the United States; they refused to go back to work at his request, and only returned to work on orders from the head of their union.

This flagrant disregard of public welfare, and established agencies of government, was but one step removed from open revolution in war time.

And yet the head of the United Mine Workers, according to news reports of May 4, says to the men who struck: "Your record of patriotism can never be challenged."

BEHIND THE
SCENES IN THE PARIS
OF TODAY!Graduating Exercises At Kiln School

Graduating exercises for the Kiln High School were held on April 29 in the new auditorium of the school with T. D. Moore, school head, presiding. There were a large number of friends and relatives present.

The invocation was given by A. L. Shepherd, head of the agriculture department. Miss Myrtle Seal was salutatorian and Miss Alma Mae Haas, valedictorian.

Short talks were made by Kenneth McCarty, county superintendent of education, and Sam Favre, Jr., recent graduate from Mississippi State in Kiln.

Mrs. George Curet presented the class for graduation and T. D. Moore awarded the diplomas. Miss Marilyn made the response.

A short War Bond talk was made by Mr. Al Voight of Bay St. Louis. The program closed with the singing of the class song, the words of which were written by the class.

The graduates were Alma Mae Haas, Melvin Welborn, Mildred Baker, Ouida Mae Rester, Eugene Favre, C. W. Lee, Myrtle Seal, Gladys Favre, Julia Mae Lee, Ouida Moran, Eido Depree and Linton Lee.

BAYOUCADET RESTAURANT

Become Necessary?

In conformity with the wishes of the Office of Defense Transportation—an authorized Government agency with which the L. & N. is fully cooperating in the handling of war-time transportation problems—the Louisville and Nashville Railroad urges passengers to refrain from non-essential travel. The need for this restriction grows out of the necessity of accommodating essential travel, and the present crowded condition of trains.

WHAT IS NON-ESSENTIAL TRAVEL?

The following trips are defined as non-essential: Visiting friends in other cities. Going home for the week-end. Those of a sightseeing nature. Any trips merely for social or pleasure purposes, including those for attending conventions, class reunions, etc. Attending sporting or athletic events.

The railroads today are carrying nearly four times the passenger traffic they did in 1939, with practically the same amount of equipment. One-half of all available Pullman cars and one-third the number of coaches are being used now for transporting military personnel in special cars or special trains.

VACATION TRIPS

It is desirable, first, that vacations be spent at, or as near, home as possible. However, where journeys are involved, observance of the following would be helpful: Spread vacation period over the whole year, instead of the usual concentration during June, July and August.

Commence and terminate vacations on Tuesdays, Wednesdays or Thursdays (relatively light travel days).

Vacation trips should, in no circumstances, involve travel during holiday periods.

Take entire vacation at one time instead of splitting it into several shorter periods, involving perhaps more than one trip.

Essential war needs prevent the construction of additional passenger train equipment. Travelers must be prepared to encounter delayed arrivals and crowded conditions of the trains, and a lack of some of the usual travel comforts.

State Laboratory Busy

It has been announced by the state board of health that 519 anti-rabies treatments were sent out from the laboratory in the first three months of 1943, and heads of 49 animals were sent to the laboratory in Jackson for examination, all of which proved positive. Mad dogs seem to be running at large all over the state and every possible precaution should be taken to prevent them biting people.

Mrs. Longino's Life Closed

Mrs. Marion Buckley Longino, widow of the late former Governor, died at her home in Jackson last week. Mrs. Longino was a native of Lawrence County, coming to Jackson when her distinguished husband became governor of Mississippi in January 1900. She is survived by three sons and two daughters. Mrs. Longino was active in civic and religious work.

Libraries are Important

The State Library Commission, the official sponsor of the State Library Extension Project has custody of the book collection bought with federal funds available through the Work Projects Administration. As a part of the plan for liquidation the books were deposited in the various counties, the number of books in each county depending upon the plan presented by the individual county for future use of the books. Loans will continue to be made either directly from the Commission or by inter-county loans. The State Library Commission has an excellent collection covering practically every subject, including present world crisis. Library patrons throughout the State are urged to make use of this collection. Write Miss Pearl Sneed, Secretary, State Library Commission, New Capital Building, for definite details concerning any type of loan.

State's Military Training

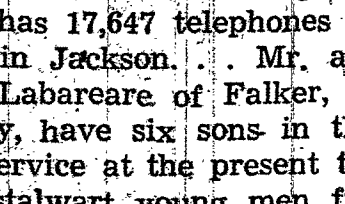

Mississippi State College is rendering good service in the training of men for military duties, but not all of the fine facilities of the college will be used for military students in the various lines of special work given them. President Humphrey is looking forward to another fine enrollment of regular students this fall. The summer session will open May 25th and a large attendance is assured.

State Dem. Com. Meeting

The State Democratic Committee held a meeting in Jackson last Thursday and transacted routine business with reference to the ensuing primary in August. The resignation of Louis Jiggett as National Committeeman was accepted and Garland Lyell elected in his place. Hugh Wood of Hazlehurst was elected secretary in the place of L. J. Wise, who is in the army.

Raking Around

A report from State College says Mississippians are growing 380,000 Victory Gardens this year. Permitted for an oil test in Hinds County, between Jackson and Raymond, has been issued by Oil and Gas Supervisor, H. M. Morse. Dr. A. L. Emerson, one of the state's most prominent doctors, died last week at the age of 78 years. Kenzie Wagner, recently arrested in Virginia, has been returned to Parchman. Damage from a tornado in the vicinity of Henderson, Texas, last week was estimated at a million dollars. The state pardon board was in session last week and Gov. Johnson extended clemency to five persons serving in the penitentiary. Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg is turning out 83 graduates, to whom degrees are being delivered. An addition costing $350,000 is being added to the new government hospital being constructed in Jackson. The record in April shows that the Telephone company has 17,647 telephones in operation in Jackson. Mr. and Mrs. John Labaree of Falkner, Tippah County, have six sons in the military service at the present time, six fine, stalwart young men from the same home. Winston Churchill has been in Washington for the past several days planning things for the future with President Roosevelt. Good rains have been reported from all parts of the state and the crop prospect is looking up.

NEHI BOTTLING CO. GULFPORT, MISS.

AT UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

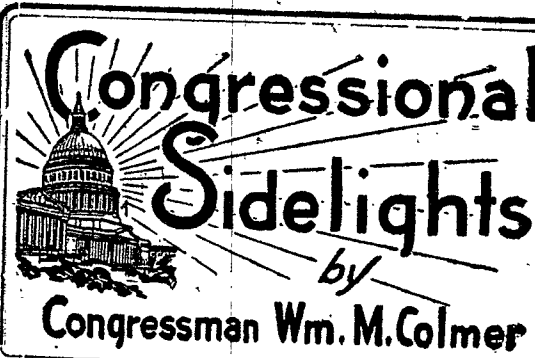

ELTON FAYARD

Judge and Mrs. Henry T. Fayard, Sr., are very proud of their young son Elton (Primo) Fayard, who is taking advantage of the opportunities in education offered by the Navy, and making the most of them.

He has been stationed at the Naval Training School (Electrical) at the University of Minnesota, and has been selected for advanced training there. During the sixteen weeks he will be there, he will be given a specialized course leading to the rating of Electrician's Mate. This course will help to prepare him to operate and maintain and service all electrical equipment in the Navy, ashore and afloat. He will have an education in a skill which will increase his value to the Navy and be of great worth to him upon his return to civilian life.

He is to be congratulated upon his selection for further training, and his many friends wish him the best of luck.

After the Senate had become the grave yard of three bills seeking to deal with strikes and labor racketeers which had passed the House during the past year and a half, it finally passed a bill of its own last week known as the Conally Bill, which was heralded over the country as anti-strike bill. This Bill provided, in brief, authority for the President to take over any plant where a strike disturbance occurred, provided that plant were engaged in war production. The President has already on several occasions exercised such authority. The other provision of the bill would make it unlawful for any one to strike against the government after the government had assumed the control and operation of the plants. No one has ever heard so far as we know, of anybody contending that Labor had the right to strike against its government. These were, in brief, the main provisions of the Conally Bill.

When the Bill came to the House, the House Military Affairs Committee, which for several weeks had been considering a number of labor and anti-strike bills—including one which we introduced prior to Pearl Harbor—practically rewrote the bill, retaining these provisions but adding others of its own, especially a provision requiring a thirty day cooling off period and giving the War Labor Board the power to settle these labor and management disturbances. The House Bill also contains other provisions, among them a provision requiring a registration and accounting by Labor Unions, and another of the same name as the Senate Bill, it cannot be regarded as an anti-strike bill—except of course as to strikes against the government. It could be more appropriately designated as a bill prescribing the conditions under which strikes could be had.

There are a number of us in the Congress who believe that a laboring man working in a war industry has no more right to strike against his government than the soldier or sailor in the armed forces has to desert the colors in time of battle. And those of us who feel that way think that some legislation should be enacted which would be sufficiently drastic to prevent the John L. Lewises of Labor from dictating to the President, the Congress, and one hundred and thirty million American people.

With this in mind I have given notice that on consideration of the Bill I will offer an amendment to the bill which would make a conspiracy to bring about a strike in one of these war industries a felony under the law. If such an amendment were adopted we could forget the rest of the bill, because such an amendment would strike at the very root of the trouble and would make the labor leaders, rather than the rank and file of patriotic laborers, responsible for their acts. At least it will be squarely put before the House to determine whether they want to do anything about strike conspiracies of the John L. Lewises.

America and her allies have won a signal success over the Axis armies by capturing or killing the whole Axis army in North Africa. It was a distinct victory and now gives the Allies a hopping off place to attack the European continent. The Axis seems to be more or less on the run in all theatres of the war, but we cannot share the enthusiasm of some of the radio commentators and the newspaper columnists in thinking that the war is about over.

Letter Expressing Thanks
And Appreciation To War
Bond Drive Chairman And Co-Workers

Mr. Joseph O. Mauffray, Chairman of the second War Loan Drive in Hancock County, is in receipt of a letter from Hon. W. S. McLarin, Jr., Chairman of the United States Treasury War Finance Committee of the Sixth Federal Reserve District, thanking him and his co-workers in the county for the splendid work done in the War Loan Drive. The following is Mr. McLarin's letter:

Mr. Joseph O. Mauffray
Bay St. Louis, Mississippi

Dear Mr. Mauffray:

Now that the Second War Loan Drive has been successfully concluded, the first thing I want to do is to thank those who are responsible for the especially fine results achieved in the Sixth Federal Reserve District. I refer to the success in substantially exceeding the quota set for the District, and I am confident that the final tabulations will show that the workers in this drive made an outstanding record in obtaining a wide distribution of the securities offered.

As much as I would like to do so, it is not possible for me to thank in person or by personal letter the many thousands of workers who have patriotically devoted so much of their time and energy in making the Drive a success in every community, city, and county in the Sixth District. However, I do want to thank you for your great assistance to the Treasury and to our country; and I particularly want to thank you on my behalf, as Chairman of the Treasury War Finance Committee in this District, for your wholehearted support and cooperation in this very important war effort.

I shall be very appreciative if you will convey to your co-workers and assistants the gratitude that I here express. Please tell them that I am profoundly grateful.

Cordially yours,
W. S. McLARIN, JR., Chairman
United States Treasury
War Finance Committee.

...“It makes Me Wonder What Kind of an American I Am!”

“This morning I visited with the Jones family. Believe me, I learned firsthand what this war means to all of us, and how our loved ones are sacrificing on the war fronts today—right now! That is, I talked to the oldest Jones boy, home on furlough from the battlefield.”

“When I learned what our boys at the front are doing—risking their lives in battle, exposing themselves to shell shock and the many other horrors of war, going for days on emergency rations and without a good night’s rest, and making countless sacrifices unheard of here at home... well, it made me wonder just what kind of an American I am.”

“It made me wonder, too, how many other Americans have been as easy-going as I—going on about our daily tasks, giving little thought to what we can do to help.”

“I realize that I, like too many others, have been concerned mostly about how this war is affecting me—instead of finding ways how I can help in our war effort. From now on, when I’m asked to work in OCD or Red Cross—to sell War Bonds or do other wartime jobs, I won’t need any excuses. In fact, I won’t wait to be asked. I’ll volunteer, knowing that my contribution will help bring Victory quicker and speed the return of our courageous fighting men!”

Vesper Services Held At Bay High Auditorium Sunday Evening

Vesper service was held in the high school auditorium on Sunday evening at six o'clock for the senior class of Bay High.

The following was the program: Processional—Mrs. Carl Smith; Invocation: Rev. Eual Samples; At Evening Time, Bay High Chorus; Vesper Message: Rev. Eual Samples; “A Glad Prayer,”—Bay High Chorus; Benediction: Rev. Eual Samples; Recessional: Mrs. Carl Smith.

Mr. Samples took as his subject: “The Trusteeship of Knowledge” and read the scripture Mark 4:21-25 and took as his text Mark 4:24 “With what measure you mete it shall be measured unto you; and more shall be given you.”

The disciples were given special training by Jesus. Mysteries of the kingdom of God had been imparted to them. All of this special training, however, imposed upon them a sacred obligation. The candle was not bought to be placed under a bushel or under the bed. There is nothing hid save that it should be manifested. “Take heed what you hear.” “With what measure you mete it shall be measured unto you; and more shall be given unto you.”

Just as preparation as you impart this knowledge more shall be given unto you; and just in proportion as you fail to impart it even that which you have will be taken away from you.

High school graduates are in somewhat the same position. Knowledge and training have been given them. This obligates them to the community because of the training received and the part the community played in making the education possible, and it also brings an obligation because of the possession of knowledge acquired in the period of training. Increase in knowledge carries with it a corresponding increase in responsibilities.

The tendency in the past few years has been to shirk responsibility in so far as it is possible, and do only that which will enable us to get by. This has a boomerang effect upon the individual and sooner or later comes back to cut one down.

In order that the graduate should be able to meet the needs of a new day, it will be necessary to be alert to opportunities, and use all the initiative one possesses. That is one of the present day needs which is more demanding because of the crises time in which we live. While listening to the radio the other night the announcer began to tell about Henry Kaiser who is known today as an outstanding figure because he has been alert to opportunities when his nation was in dire need of a lift. He has risen to an outstanding national figure. Right now he is concerning himself with the business of a post war world. Industry must be able to meet the needs of a new day. Now is the time to plan for it, and he is alert to the need and challenge of the hour. This is necessary for one to fully use capacities and knowledge.

Then one must do thorough work. “With what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you; and more shall be given unto you.” The obligations of special training should mean a better type of work. Rest assured that the world will measure back to you in proportion as you measure out to it. One of my professors in the university was a brilliant man known for his thorough scholarship. He wrote many books which are still on the market today. On one occasion he told the class that he had a problem of scholarship come up in one of his books. He went to his typewriter and wrote out thirty pages so that he would be sure that he understood the problem. Then he wrote the result of all this painstaking study and effort in just three lines. Here is an example worth following.

One may easily become a back number in the mental word. Your education does not stop when the diploma has been placed in your hands. Every graduate should keep himself intelligently informed about the events of the times. This is necessary for those who would best use their capacities.

The advance of civilization constantly calls for new leaders. The alert, thorough and informed person who is willing to accept responsibility soon finds himself in a position of leadership. Never let up. Bring yourself to the place where the unfinished task will irritate you so much until your very constitutional structure will not allow you to leave it awhile my duties led me past the unfinished piece of sculptor work partially carved on the side of Stone Mountain. Every time I passed I wondered why the man laid down his tools without completing the task. One would like to try to finish it but it is not possible.

If one keeps moving in the right direction the time will come when the unfinished task will beckon so strongly that the individual will of necessity complete the task.

You have finished to begin.

ORTTE THEATER WED. & THURSDAY “THE OMAHA TRAIL”

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Super Special

James Craig and Dean Jagger, who scored notably in “Valley of the Sun” are again teamed in “The Omaha Trail.” Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer’s super special which opened Wednesday.

Craig is cast as Patrick Candel, poetic Irish wagon boss against whom the wiles of the ruthless Pipestone Ross (Dean Jagger) are pitted. The epic story deals with the building of the railroads across the sun-baked plains of Kansas and Nebraska. Patrick Candel is transported by ox train, to Omaha, a locomotive, with which a new railway is to be initiated.

Swift Action

Opposing him are the plans of Pipestone Ross, who believes that the railroads will end his freighting business. How Candel successfully freights the locomotive to Omaha provides a swift-moving story.

A newcomer, starlet Pamela Blake, makes an impressive debut as Julie

Dogs Should Be Vaccinated Against Rabies

Unless State Board of Health can secure rabbits for use in the manufacture of vaccine against rabies, the State Hygienic Laboratory will no longer be able to furnish treatment for people bitten by rabid dogs, at its present nominal cost of $2.50 for the fourteen doses. "If we are forced to purchase this vaccine from a commercial manufacturer," said Dr. Felix J. Underwood, Executive Officer of the State Board of Health, "it will cost the state, and in turn, the patient, $7 for the complete treatment."

Stating that the demand for vaccine has increased while the supply of rabbits has diminished, Dr. Underwood blamed the former on the fact that people have neglected to have their dogs vaccinated against rabies as provided by law. Anti-rabies treatments were issued to 519 people by the state laboratory during the first three months of 1943, according to the health officer. "Yet in the face of this prevalence of rabies, only the usual number of animals are being brought in for inoculation according to the veterinarians."

"The rabbit market seems to have been taken over by the general public, who are purchasing stock for breeding purposes for the production of food to supplement meat ration," he said.

"If the people of Mississippi cannot furnish the laboratory with rabbits, we cannot furnish vaccine at cost for people whose lives have been endangered by the bite of a dog."

Calling the sale of rabbits to the Board of Health a control measure along with vaccination of dogs and the destruction of worthless stray dogs, Dr. Underwood said that the laboratory can continue to prepare the vaccine if rabbits weighing 4 1/2 to 6 pounds are forthcoming. The Board of Health will pay 30c a pound and express charges for rabbits, the brains which are used in the manufacture of this vaccine. Rabbit owners desiring further information may address their inquiries to: State Hygienic Laboratory, P. O. Box 1700, Jackson 113, Mississippi.
